The Agricultural University of Tirana, the European University of Tirana, and the University Fan S. Noli of Korçë: 32 mobilities are scheduled for the 2 upcoming years.

22 October 2018 in Tirana, Albania.

The International Center for Advanced Agronomic Mediterranean Studies, Mediterranean Agronomic Institute of Montpellier (CIHEAM-IAMM) is one of the 4 Mediterranean Agronomic Institutes of the CIHEAM, a Mediterranean intergovernmental organization composed of 13 member countries and, among them, Albania.

For many years, the CIHEAM-IAMM has been maintaining a close cooperation relationship with Albania, and in particular with Albanian Universities.

To date, more than 40 Albanian students have been trained for 20 years in the different masters proposed by the CIHEAM-IAMM.

The CIHEAM-IAMM has been working with Albanian Universities for years, and maintaining a strong partnership through teachers' mobilities, enabling a certain number of scientific papers to be co-published.

Important projects have been conducted by the CIHEAM-IAMM in the context of a close partnership with Albania: this includes the SmartAL project (<https://www.smartal.uet.edu.al>).

Thanks to the Erasmus + Programme / International mobilities, the CIHEAM-IAMM, in partnership with the Agricultural University of Tirana, the European University of Tirana and the University Fan S. Noli of Korçë, pursues an academic collaboration by responding to the "Erasmus+ International Mobilities" tender.

These mobilities will strengthen the respective competencies of the four partner institutions, in particular on public policies, agricultural management, agricultural / environmental and food development economics: the priority and promising fields identified.

The participation of the Erasmus+ programme will also allow an expansion of the partnership network to Europe and the partner countries.
